In this bulletin, the authors have narrated the success story of the world famous Operational Research Project executed in Sukhomajri village (Haryana) in the foothills of Shiwaliks on the basis of integrated watershed management. While doing so they have also dealt with other projects located at villages, Nada and Bunga in Haryana State, and Parchh in Punjab, all undertaken as replication of Sukhomajri model. The research achievements in areas like watershed hydrology, soil properties, forest development, design of earthen dams, supplemental irrigation, agricultural development, animal husbandry, economic evaluation, etc. have been highlighted and areas for further research are identified.
