

TRAINING METHODOLOGY IN EXTENSION EDUCATION

M. KANWAT, M. CHARGOTRA, P. SURESH KUMAR

ABOUT THE BOOK

The need of enhancing the capacity of technical skill amongst the farmers, rural youths, farm women and extension professionals have increased in recent years due to changing scenario of world agriculture. Keeping this need in mind, the authors have been encouraged to write a book on "Training Methodology in Extension Education" which provides basic concepts, with the explanation, principles and strategy for designing good and effective training programmes. In the new millennium, the knowledge revolution has brought tremendous changes in information technology. The training inputs cannot remain constant because of the dynamic pace of change. These days, innovations are zooming up the information highway and extension organizations are trying to keep their people ahead of the curve. Consequently, training methodologies have become more important. This book covers broad spectrum of Training and HRD, Training Concepts and Approaches, Training Needs: Analysis and Assessment, Setting Training Objectives, Training Model, Training Design, Training Strategy, Methods of Trainings, Off the Job-Training, Micro-Lab, Training Evaluation, Role of Organization in Training and Development and Conducting an Effective Training Programme. This book is meant for extension professional, researchers and students for being trained to become efficient communicator, a good trainer and training planner.
