

out on 463 ha of community land.

- 1171. Pande, V.C., Singh, H.B. and Nambiar, K.T.N. 1994. Watershed management approach for agricultural development in the semi-arid tropics of Gujarat-A case Study. Proc. Vol.II, 8th Intl. Soil Conservation Conference, Dec. 4-8, 1994, New Delhi, India (1997): 811-817.

The paper deals with development of a watershed (313 ha) at Khedbrahma taluka in Sabarkantha district (Gujarat State) through adoption of integrated soil and water management, cropping and fuel-fodder production programmes with the active participation of the local people. The parameters of agricultural development are suggestive of the existing