The book is a Directory of the resource personnel of Central Soil & Water Conservation Research and Training Institute, Dehradun and its Research Centres located in different agro-climatic regions of the country who are engaged in the research, extension and teaching work in the fields of soil and water conservation and watershed management and are on the Advisory Panels of various national organizations. It contains photographs and brief biodata of these scientists alongwith their achievements in the past and present area of work and the same have been presented in an alphabatical manner. In this publication, which is a pioneering effort in CSWCRTI, Dehradun, the authors have attempted to make it a ready-made document of information about individual scientists which the readers and various national/international agencies may find useful for identifying the appropriate resource personnel to provide them consultancy in their fields of specialization.
