
Presents results of an experiment conducted in the degraded (class V) bouldery land at Dehradun since 1980 with combinations of four top feed tree species and two perennial grass species.