

Design and implementation of web-based database of rapeseed-mustard germplasm using Linux - Apache - MySQL - PHP (LAMP) technology

- Vinod Kumar, Kulvinder Singh, J. Nanjundan
- Published 11 June 2013
- Computer Science
- African Journal of Agricultural Research

Rapeseed-mustard is major crops used for producing edible oil and are grown in nearly 6 million hectares in India. Germplasm collection is valuable gene pool providing diverse genetic material that may be applied for the improvement of cultivars. As more information is available about the germplasm, the wider selection and diversity of materials can be utilized for varietal improvement. The large number of rapeseed-mustard germplasm collected and evaluated is being maintained without computer...